1. There are reported to be no radar installations on the coast, but there is believed to be one on the Partizanka. The [] are reputed to have caused certain parts of this latter to be removed during the visit of 50X1-HUM their fleet, thus rendering it unserviceable.
2. Coastal defenses are strengthened by a whole system of static, mobile and anti-aircraft batteries. Static batteries are disposed along the coast in the same positions as before the war, with modifications which were carried out during the Italian and German occupations. In addition, there is the motorized anti-aircraft artillery position, which is constantly changed. Thus, the entrance to the Gruz inlet is covered by two mobile batteries at Lapad and Kolocep island. The guns are [] 40 mm 50X1-HUM Bofors, and Soviet.
3. For the servicing of these batteries and near coastal defenses, the Marine Infantry Division, about 5,000 strong, was formed this year. Its Hqs is in Rijeka and it comprises four Brigades:
 - 1st - Mali Losinj (Lussinpiccolo)
 - 2nd - Moskijsna (sic)
 - 3rd - Pijanovna (Fianona)
 - 4th - Cres (Cherso)
4. Coastal control is carried out from fixed observation posts by units of the fleet, motor boats and sailing boats of KNOJ.
5. Only a small part of the international channels along the Yugoslav coast has been swept of mines laid during the war. In the main, it may be said that the entire wartime minefield has only been modified in such a way that it could be completely mined in a short time.
